ST EDWARD HIGH SCHOOL

and prays

Analyzed physically, St. Edward High School could be said to be a rectangular structure of steel, mortar, and glass, rising two stories above a cement foundation.

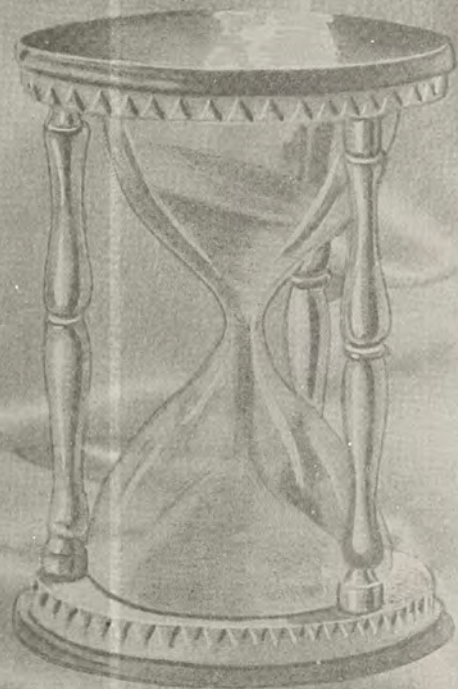

The statement above is coldly factual, but to us who have known her and been a part of her, she is much more than a compounded mass of construction materials.

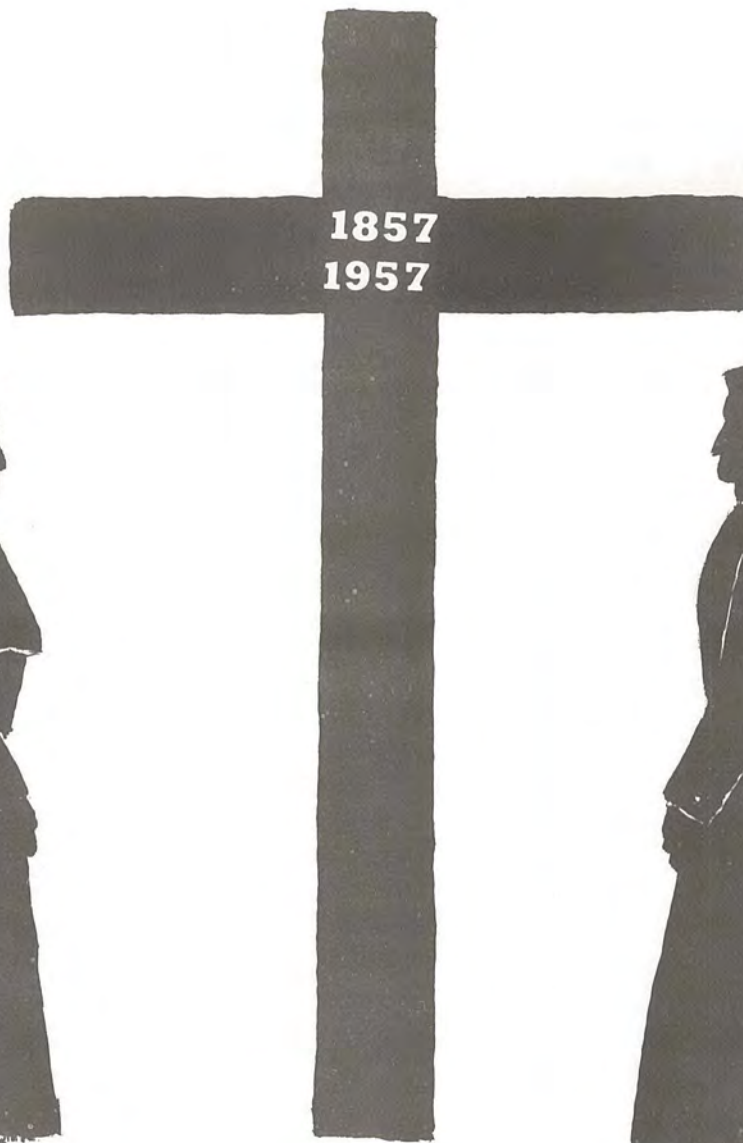

To us she is a warm, living thing, possessing a personality and character distinctly her own. She derives her life and spirit from the many who have walked her halls and sat in her classrooms. Her character is the conglomerate of all her charges. From many diverse human beings, she assumes the bad and the good to form her own character, her own personality. She is neither better nor worse than those from whom she has acquired life. Her achievements are only as great as their accomplishments -- her reputation only as good as their conduct -- her spiritual greatness as profound as their love of God. She assumes a different form in the mind of every person that in any way comes in contact with her, but in the minds and hearts of us who have been a part of her, she is an unforgettable personality -- intimately known, intensely vital, extremely dear.

-- D. Michael Ross, '57

In this, the centennial year of the Congregation of Holy Cross, may we pay the tribute of a glance towards those to whom we owe in great measure our progress in wisdom and in grace during our high school years. Words are elusive, and it is difficult to express our gratitude to the members of the Congregation of Holy Cross who have guided us in our transition from boydom to manhood. Our debt is greater than many of us at the moment realize.

We would include in this tribute all present and past religious teachers of the St. Edward faculty who are now or who soon will be doing God's work in the newly-formed Eastern and South-West vice-provinces of the Brothers' society. All our teachers have played a great part in our development. As we have benefited from the devoted, unselfish sacrifices of the priests and Brothers who have taught us to know what is right, so do we felicitate the community of Holy Cross in this centennial year, and pray for a continuance of God's blessings on them during their second century of service to the Church. Ad multos annos!

Commencement Address

Acknowledgements

The staff of the 1957 Edwardian Review wishes to express its gratitude and appreciation to the following persons:

To Brothers John Ryan, Gerald Fitzgerald, Robert Leamson, and Bernard DeRocher, who labored long hours in the printing.

To Brother Stephen Titzer and his two assistants, Thomas Tischler and John Higgins, who provided all the pictures in the book.

To Mr. Joseph J. Pauer, who has done so well in the printing of the cover.

To Mr. Lawrence Johnson, who prepared all the plates and gave such invaluable aid in the book's layout and organization.

To all others who in smaller yet important ways helped us.
